

It might be time to schedule a replacement

According to our records, It could be time to change your Fellowes® AeraMax® Pro Carbon filter — after all, they're rated for replacement every six months.

Fellowes AeraMax Air Purifiers take into consideration the quality of the air they clean, as well as the period of time they are being used, in order to determine the amount of dirt and pollutants that have been captured on the filters. Once this amount has risen to a level where the efficiency of the product is about to start decreasing, the air purifier tells you it's time to replace the filters. If you have AeraMax Pro units with PureView Technology, the display will alert you when it's time to replace the filters. For other AeraMax Pro units, follow guidance of the Filter Change Indicator lights.
