

We spend 90% of our time indoors where air quality can trigger asthma and allergies

According to the EPA 20% of public schools have poor indoor air.¹

According to the EPA indoor air pollution exposure is 100 times greater than outdoor pollution.²

According to the CDC more than 300 substances in the workplace can cause or worsen asthma.³

Workers scored up to 61% higher in cognitive assessments in places with cleaner indoor air quality

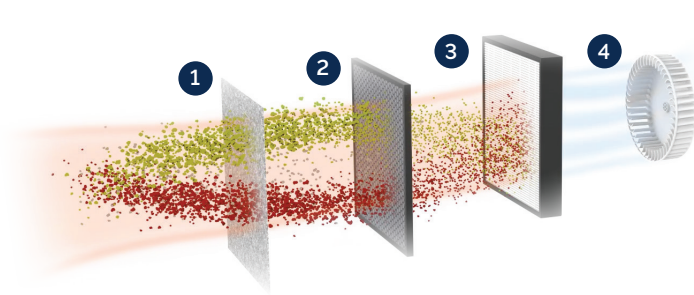

Clean air may also allow some allergy & asthma sufferers to be less reliant on medication.
